Cumulative index for Volumes 1–22 (1969–1990)		1
The effect on clinical judgements of new types of fluorescent lamp: I Experimental arrangements and clinical results	P A Lovett, M B Halstead, A R Hill, D A Palmer, T S Sonnex and M R Pointer	35
The effect on clinical judgements of new types of fluorescent lamp: II Colour measurements and statistical analysis	P A Lovett, M B Halstead and A R Hill	53
The effect on clinical judgements of new types of fluorescent lamp: III Further statistical analysis leading to a new specification for lamps	P A Lovett, A R Hill and M B Halstead	69
Electrode behaviour of pulsed high-pressure sodium lamps	A Anders	81
New formulae for relative optical air mass determination in sky models	L Piršel	85
Sumpner's principle: A discussion	C Cuttle	99
Fluorescent lamps: Dynamic analysis with two-temperature representation of electron energy distribution	K Wani	107
Relative visual performance: A basis for application	M S Rea and M J Ouellette	135
Calculation of reflecting and refracting optical elements	W Stanioch	145
Sawtooth rooflights: Efficiency at different sky states	A K Solovyov and A V Spiridonov	151
Indoor illuminance: Effect of externally reflected component	A K Solovyov and A V Spiridonov	167
Personal preferences for fluorescent lamps with and without UVA	R A Weale	171
Review Paper
High-pressure discharge lamps: Approaches to modelling	L Cifuentes	161
Technical Notes
Equivalent veiling luminance: Different mathematical approach to calculation	A Augdal	91
Effective intensity behaviour of flashing lights at reduced level	M Chander, K Chandra and K C Joshi	111
Illuminance from electric light installations: Methods of comparison of measured and calculated values	H Bougdah and D J Carter	155
Interreflection calculations: Improving convergence	P J Littlefair	175
Correspondence		159
National Illumination Committee of Great Britain Report for the year ended 30 September 1990		113
